

Commentary on the Gospel for Wed, Oct 19th 2011

If we only know the time when the Lord is coming, people will be prepared and will do all that is required of them as servants. But the fact is that the master of the house is coming everyday to visit us and to see how we are doing. We meet the master every time that we deal with his people. We see the master in the day to day accomplishment of our tasks. How do we prepare for the coming of the Lord? The preparation does not start on the last day of the year before we make a report. All year round is an opportunity to serve the Lord. Not a single day will pass without meeting the master and therefore without serving him. Therefore be prepared. The master is coming.
