

Commentary on the Gospel for Fri, Nov 23rd 2012

The human heart is the temple of God; it is where the Spirit dwells. We enter into our hearts to find our true selves and be with God. But with our many other concerns and desires, this temple gets cluttered with all sorts of things. We accept other boarders, with God as only one of them. We lose the center of ourselves when our hearts are not centered in God. Clean your heart of all the litter and make it a temple fit for God.
