Liturgy of the Word
First Reading Introduction Starting today and for	ction or the next four weeks, we shall listen to Paul's letter to the Romans. Today he presents himself as the Lord's apostle, especially for the gentiles, and then he goes straight to the heart of the message he has to proclaim: that Jesus Christ is the son of David and our risen Savior.
Gospe	el Introduction
	e Jews for not believing unless they see spectacular signs. But Christ proclaims that faith consists in trust in the word and in the person of the one who is sent. The early Christian community specified further: faith rests in confidence in the risen Christ. The preeminent sign is Jesus Christ himself. We believe because of this or that w	vonder or proof but because Jesus makes God visible to us.
Gener	ral Intercessions
- That we may have a do	eep faith in Jesus Christ and be close to him, for he is for us the human sign and shape of God, we pray:
- That v	we may be people deeply marked by the resurrection of Christ as people who keep rising with him to a deeper Christian life and who raise up one another from sin and misery, we pray:
- That n	many people may come to know Christ and grow in his life, we pray:

of your Son here in our midst.

Let this be enough to sustain us to go with one another the road
- at times smooth, at times rough - of service, communion and friendship.

Help us to uplift and raise up one another by the power of our risen Lord, Jesus Christ, your Son, who lives with you and with us now and for ever.

Placeing

Greater than Solomon, greater than any prophet, is Jesus. In him we believe. Him we trust. Him we treasure as the meaning of our lives. May almighty God bless you, the Father, and the Son, and the Holy Spirit.
